A dispatch from Frankfurt to ODACID (14 February 1961) discusses Hessian Attorney General Fritz BAUKR's efforts to implicate State Secretary Dr. GLOEHR in Nazi war crimes. It notes BAUKR's visits to Israel, and states that BAUKR played a definite but obscure role in the capture of Adolf EICHMANN. The dispatch ends with the comment that the writer suspects BAUKR may well be connected in some high-ranking capacity with the Attorney General's office in West Germany.
