Mr. Speaker, yesterday I brought to the House's attention the importance of overcoming the objections to the presidential candidacy of Mr. Andrew Jackson. Today, I wish to take this opportunity to address the question of the President's authority in the selection of the Cabinet.

The President's power to select his Cabinet is a vital aspect of our constitutional system. This power is not only necessary for the effective governance of our country, but it is also a means by which the President can ensure that his policies are carried out through his appointees.

However, some members of Congress have expressed concerns about the President's authority in selecting his Cabinet. They argue that the appointment process should be more transparent and that the President should be more accountable for his choices.

I believe that the President's authority in selecting his Cabinet is essential to the proper functioning of our government. The Cabinet is the President's most important team, and their selections should reflect the President's values and priorities.

Moreover, the Cabinet plays a crucial role in advising the President on policy matters, and their expertise and experience are invaluable in making informed decisions for the country.

In conclusion, I urge my colleagues to support the President's authority in selecting his Cabinet. This power is necessary for the effective governance of our country, and it is essential that the President have the ability to choose those who best represent his vision and values.

Mr. Speaker, thank you for giving me this opportunity to address this important issue.
The Speaker, the hon. member for November 4th, 2020, the member for Yukon, raised the question of the deficit. His question was directed to the government. He asked why the government had not provided enough resources to address the needs of Yukon residents.

Mr. Speaker, the government has always been committed to ensuring that Yukon residents have access to the necessary resources to support their communities. We have invested heavily in infrastructure projects, health care, and education, among other areas. Our goal has always been to provide the best possible services to our residents, and we continue to work towards that aim.

Mr. Speaker, the member asked why more resources were not allocated to the Yukon. As I mentioned earlier, we have already invested significantly in the region. However, we understand that there is always room for improvement, and we are committed to doing everything we can to meet the needs of all Yukon residents. We will continue to work with Yukoners to ensure that our region is well-supported.

Mr. Speaker, the member also asked about the deficit. The deficit is a result of the global economic downturn caused by the pandemic. Despite the challenges we face, we are committed to ensuring that Yukon has the resources it needs to thrive. We will continue to work with all Canadians to overcome this difficult period.
NOVEMBER 20, 1972; P. 1082-1083

F. HOUSE ACTION AND VOTE ON PRESIDENTIAL VETO

Dear Chairman:

There was no opposition.

President's Message

The President has vetoed the legislation. The reason is the President's objection to the language of the legislation.

Speaker

There was no opposition to the President's veto.

The Speaker's Message

The President's veto is due to the objection to the language of the legislation. There was no opposition.

Speaker's Message

The President has vetoed the legislation. The reason is the President's objection to the language of the legislation.

Chairman

The President's veto is due to the objection to the language of the legislation. There was no opposition.