and should be unique without delay.

I hope this outline to be your present monitor committee.

(See exhibit I) The President, I believe it is significant to note that the committee.

The President. Without objection, it is so ordered.

I, as President, I propose to send to the desk the

C. Section on Conference Report—Conference Report

B.E.R. 1, 1971; P.P. 8178-8179, 8280, and S.I.7911-81792

(After No. 92-1972)

Prepared by the President—and the President's Office

C. Section on Conference Report—Conference Report
The Freedom of Information Act, 1972

Chapter I

The Principle

1. The right of every person to access to the information held by every governmental and non-governmental body in the public service or corporate body is hereby declared to be a human right.

2. The purpose of this Act is to provide for public access to Government information and for the establishment of a mechanism for the exercise of that right. It shall be the responsibility of the Government to ensure that information is available to the public under this Act.

Chapter II

The Right of Access

3. The right of access to information shall be exercised by means of a request made to the body holding the information.

4. The body shall, upon receiving a request, examine the information and determine whether it is in the public interest to disclose the information.

Chapter III

Duties of the Body

5. The body shall, upon determining that it is in the public interest to disclose the information, provide the information to the person making the request.

6. The body shall, upon determining that the information is not in the public interest to disclose, provide a written response explaining the reasons for its decision.

Chapter IV

Appeals

7. Any person aggrieved by a decision of a body under this Act may appeal to the Information Commissioner.

8. The Information Commissioner shall, upon receiving an appeal, examine the information and determine whether the decision of the body is in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Chapter V

Final Provisions

9. This Act shall come into force on the date of its publication in the Official Gazette.

10. This Act shall be called the Freedom of Information Act, 1972.

The Government of India

[Signature]

[Date]

The Information Commissioner

[Signature]

[Date]
The report is as follows:

The President, Mr. Kennedy, and members of the committee of the House, I have the honor to submit a report of the committee on H.R. 9237, and ask for its favorable consideration.

The committee on Information Act Amendment—Conference.

Conference Report

This report was adopted by the conference committee.

The committee on Information Act Amendment—Conference.

Voted by Mr. Kennedy: This amendment was adopted by the committee on Information Act Amendment—Conference.

The amendment to H.R. 9237 was adopted by the House of Representatives on February 24, 1972.
The document contains a complex and lengthy text that appears to be a legal or academic document. The text is not clearly visible due to the image quality. The document seems to discuss legal or regulatory matters, potentially related to communications or technology, given the context of the visible portions. However, without clearer visibility, a detailed transcription or analysis cannot be accurately provided.